

Address bar

a space at the top of the browser, used to enter a web address/URL

Browser

program used to browse the internet

Central Processing Unit (CPU)

main processor, brains of the computer

Desktop computer

computer that is meant to be on a desk and not carried around

Download

process of receiving data to your computer from the internet, cloud or email

Hardware

parts of the computer you can touch

Input device

hardware device that sends data to the computer, allowing you to interact with and control the computer

Keyboard

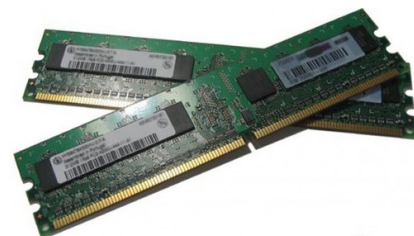

input device used to type information into the computer

Laptop

small computer that can be carried around easily, portable

Memory

device capable of storing information temporarily or permanently

Monitor

display screen for the computer

Mouse

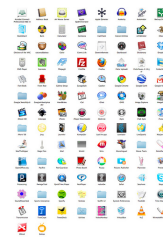

input device that moves the cursor on the screen

Output device

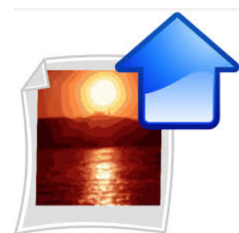

hardware device that receives data from the computer

Software

program that tells the computer what to do, also called Apps

Upload

process of sending data from your computer to the internet, cloud or another computer

---

Virus

program that causes harm to a computer

---